THE DREYFUS CASE AGAIN.

INTEREST in the Dreyfus case will be again aroused by the appeal of that unfortunate French soldier to the minister of war for a reopening of that celebrated inquiry. It will be remembered that Dreyfus was first convicted in 1894, after a trial which clearly showed that his conviction was a pre-arranged matter. In the presence of as large an assemblage of French troops as could be mustered, Dreyfus was forced to undergo the greatest, the most heart-breaking degradation possible to a soldier—his shoulder straps were cut off and the buttons removed from his military coat.

Following this, Dreyfus was sent to Devil's Island, where he was kept a prisoner under the most humiliating circumstances until 1899. Then, it having been "discovered" that his conviction was unjust, that a great wrong had been done to an innocent man, he was brought back to Paris and tried again. Again he was convicted by perjured testimony in the face of overwhelming proofs of his innocence. Immediately afterward he was graciously given a pardon, since which time he has been living quietly in a suburb of Paris.

Now he comes forward with a passionate appeal for the reopening of his case. It is extremely doubtful if Dreyfus' request will be granted. And if it is granted, it is by no means certain that his innocence will be proclaimed. Such proceedings would not have been possible in any other republic in the world except France. It would not be possible there except for the fact that Dreyfus is a Jew. Class prejudice twice caused the conviction of an innocent man, and class prejudice has been strong today in France as it was when Dreyfus was first convicted.

As regards this individual case it may be true that the hatred has been somewhat modified, because Dreyfus has rallied to his support hundreds of influential friends. Nevertheless, he will run risks of another conviction if he persists in a rehearing. His most powerful friend, Zola, has passed away. That pleader's eloquent pen, which did so much for Dreyfus in his dark years, is still forever and will be sadly missed in any future proceedings.

It is very much to be hoped that the case will be heard again and that Dreyfus will be legally acquitted of the charge of being a traitor to his country. Nobody, not even the men who have persecuted him, believes he is guilty. The fact that he was pardoned does not remove the stain upon his character. A man cannot be pardoned for an offense of which he is not guilty. The only way Dreyfus can be exonerated is through a court process. This he is entitled to and should receive without delay.

PROSECUTIONS AND EXPENSE.

A TELEGRAM from Des Moines, Ia., says that a woman who was convicted of murdering her husband and sentenced to imprisonment for life, and who secured a new trial with a resultant disagreement by the jury, is about to be freed because the prosecuting attorney does not desire to involve the county in any more expense in connection with the case. This is a most unfortunate reason for discontinuing a prosecution. If the woman is guilty—and the result of her first hearing would seem to indicate that she is—no expense should be permitted to defeat the ends of justice.

It does not necessarily follow, of course, that the conviction of the defendant at her first hearing means that she was guilty. There have been numerous court proceedings which resulted in the conviction of innocent persons, or persons who were subsequently declared to be innocent. The Molynex case in New York is one in point. Molynex was ordered to the death chair and for months lived in the shadow of ignominious execution. Yet on his second trial he was acquitted.

The Molynex hearings are probably the most expensive known to American criminal jurisprudence. But expense did not deter the state from making a hard fight. One of the reasons why crimes are so infrequently committed against the United States government—and they are few in proportion to the great number of opportunities—is that the government is relentless in its pursuit of criminals. A clerk may steal $20 and face the ends of the earth, but the government detectives will follow him wherever he goes, and sooner or later, regardless of the cost involved, he is brought to trial.

The same method of procedure should govern in state courts. Where counties are very poor and unable to meet the expenditure necessary in unusual criminal proceedings, the state should lend a hand. It is as much to the interest of the state as to any given county to secure the enforcement of the law and the punishment of law-breakers. The individual who commits a crime in a county and is acquitted or discharged through lack of funds is very likely to go to some other county and continue his operations.

Under our laws the criminal has every possible protection thrown around him. He is presumed to be innocent until he is proven guilty beyond a reasonable doubt, and shrewd lawyers, with ample funds to aid them, have little difficulty in securing the right kind of evidence. The protection society is far more important than the protection of the criminal element. It is a pity that any prosecution should be abandoned solely because the county in which it is being carried on is too poor to continue it.

SOME CHINESE PARADOXES.

CHINESE ADVICES published in yesterday's papers announced the execution of a Celestial murderer by the crucifixion method. Nailed to a cross, he suffered frightful torture for three days before death came to his relief. Yet by comparison with other Chinese methods of punishment and torture, this murderer escaped lightly. In no other land would such inhumanities be possible. In China they are a matter of course.

And China's civilization is the oldest in the world. The Chinese, we are told in an article written for Christendom by Charles Denby, former United States minister to China, invented gunpowder and discovered the compass. Suspension bridges have existed there for centuries. In the thirteenth century Marco Polo wrote of Chinese four-masted ships with water-tight compartments. A thousand years ago the Chinese were irrigating their farms and were using natural gas in evaporating brine for salt.

A former manager of the Hongkong & Shanghai Banking association, an English institution managed by Englishmen, is authority for the statement that the Chinese merchant ranks among the most honest traders in the world. This man had had dealings aggregating hundreds of millions of pounds with Chinese and never lost a penny. Higher praise could hardly be accorded by a business man to other business men. In spite of all this, no country in the world is less progressive than China.

Mr. Denby says that during his stay in Peking infanticide was so common that it excited no remark. Every morning a wagon was sent around to collect the bodies of female infants killed during the night, their bodies being thrown, without ceremony, into a ditch outside the city. All sorts of absurd superstitions are believed in among the Chinese. They believe in demons are mere chattels, and idols are believed to possess supernatural powers.

"As we understand corruption," says Mr. Denby, "the corruption of the government of China is widespread—in fact, universal. Li Hung Chang always had a man employed at Peking whose sole business it was to give money to thirty officials three times a year. The members of the tsung li yamen—foreign office—received for their services fees 1,000 per annum—in our money now about $20. It was well known, however, that these distinguished gentlemen received large sums of money from the appointees to office. The lowest amount received was $20,000, while the president enjoyed an income of $250,000.

Evidently, in spite of her old civilization, some earnest missionary work is needed in China.

THE THOMAS-KEARNS ROW.

THE ROW between Senator Kearns and Postmaster Thomas may well be viewed with complacency—by the Democrats of Salt Lake City and vicinity. Those "in the know" have long been familiar with the fact that the entente cordiale between the senator and the postmaster was shattered while it was yet in the formative period. A little matter of a United States senatorship may have had something to do with this, but that is ancient history.

The burning question of the hour is: Will Colonel Matthew Daugherty of Nebraska, once a candidate for congress on the Republican ticket, once receiver of a land office and a long time brother of a very smart man, stay fired or will he not stay fired from the high and honorable position of cashier of the Salt Lake City postoffice? As to whether Colonel Daugherty is competent or not, we will not pretend to say. We absolutely decline to take sides. If we did we could not extract nearly so much enjoyment from the fight. The battle is on and both parties declare it will be to a finish. Whether it will result in the removal of Senator Kearns as senator or of Mr. Thomas as postmaster, time alone can tell.

It might, to use a sporting expression, even run into a case of "whip-saw." Who knows?

A telegram from Washington states that according to advice received from Guatemala, United States Minister Leslie Combs has just prevented a war between Guatemala and Salvador. Inasmuch as Mr. Combs is a Kentuckian, this indicates that he has forgotten his early training. Doesn't the average Kentuckian dearly love a fight? Or perhaps Mr. Combs didn't want to see a fight in which he could take no part.

The men who have been getting up the new Butte City directory must have received their training in the circulation department of an eastern daily. Although the census gave Butte less than 30,000 population, the directory people make the total 61,116—note the exactness of the figures—without winking an eye.

About the only Democrat appointed to head a Roosevelt committee is Senator Simon Bamberger, who is to have charge of the financial arrangements. Of course, being a loyal citizen, Mr. Bamberger will proceed at once to raise a lot of money for his Republican friends to spend. That will be very nice, indeed, for the Republicans.

The announcement that Convicts Hamilton and Brown, who engaged in a fierce fight at the penitentiary the other day, may both recover, will be received with mixed feelings, but joy will not be one of them.

A number of deaf mute electrical workers have gone on a strike in Chicago. They'll probably work their fingers off explaining how it happened, but there'll be no loud talking, that's sure.

The largest shipment of opium ever received in this country has just reached San Francisco. Now there will be no excuse for the fellow who refuses to "smoke up."

We very much fear that our Methodist brethren are unfamiliar with the first verse of the one hundred and thirty-third Psalm.

SOCIETY.

One of the prettiest of the spring luncheons was that given yesterday at the Commercial club, at which the Misses Noble were the hostesses and Mrs. Baldwin and Miss Beasia Glendinning were the guests of honor. The long table in the private dining room presented a pretty picture with its decorations of white and green. The centerpiece was an immense bowl of white carnations and feathery plumosa, white strings of the green encircled the table. Handsome silver candlesticks were arranged on either end and shades of delicate green ornamented them. The place cards were dainty bunches of violets tied with pale green ribbon, on which the names of the guests were done in gold. The ladies present to meet the two special guests were Mrs. Robert Glendinning, Mrs. William O'Brien, Mrs. David S. Murray, Mrs. Louise Smedley Smith, Mrs. R. H. Channing, Mrs. Union Worthington, Mrs. Mabel Miner, Mrs. Arthur H. S. Bird and the Misses Dooly and Burke.

The fourth assembly, which took place last evening, was in all details the most enjoyable of the season's dancing events. A large number of the dancing set of the town were present, and the music and all details were perfect. As the last dancing affair of the season it was thoroughly enjoyed, and the three young men who have had charge of the series were warmly congratulated by their friends on the successful way in which all have been managed.

The reception given last evening at the First Congregational church in honor of Dr. and Mrs. Clarence and a great number of the former friends and parishioners of Dr. Brown called during the evening to greet him and his wife before their departure. The affair was managed by the members of the Ladies Aid society, and a charge of the prominent members of the church were on the committee.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Weir will be home at noon today. They have been visiting Jerusalem and the Holy Land, besides spending some time on the Mediterranean. Mr. and Mrs. Danahy, who have occupied the Weir home during their absence, will be at home at 25 R street for the summer.

Mrs. David S. Murray will entertain at a large luncheon in honor of Mrs. Theodore A. Baldwin, Jr., on Saturday, May 2.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Armstrong of Park City are spending a few days in the city.

Mrs. William Terhune has returned from California and is at home at 1035 East First South street.

Dr. and Mrs. J. T. Keith are receiving the congratulations of their friends over the arrival of a daughter.

Mrs. Ralph E. Hoag of Ogden will be in the city the first part of the coming week and will spend a few days visiting friends.

Mr. and Mrs. William Cooper left last night for Boston, and from there they will sail for Europe to spend the summer.

Mr. A. N. Hoffman left last evening for San Francisco, where he will make his home.

Dr. E. E. McLean was called to San Francisco Wednesday evening on account of the illness of his niece.

Mrs. H. G. McMillan is home from a lengthy visit with Mr. and Mrs. Luelwitz in Spokane.

Mr. W. P. Keyser entertained at a dinner at the Commercial club last evening.

Owing to the absence of Dean Eddie from the city, Mrs. Armstrong will give some readings from Browning's addition to Dr. Paden's talk on "How to Become Acquainted With Browning," at the Ladies' Literary club this afternoon.

ARE CHURCHES INTERESTED?

To The Salt Lake Herald:
My heart has been sore since I have been attending the services at the old armory, conducted by Lonnie Dennis, the colored boy preacher. He appealed to the people for having in such a place and appealed to the audience in his child-like way, and asked that if anyone could get a better place he wished they would do it. Now I believe that that boy had a good place in which to have his services and the preachers of Salt Lake, regardless of denomination, would roll up their sleeves and get into the ring against the devil, there would be one of the greatest revivals in Salt Lake that was ever known. Let us have the passage of scripture, God is no respecter of persons, and said he did not think there would be any one here, and as white and black, rich and poor would have to mingle together there we might as well begin here. I thought how true it is, and the passage of scripture came to me where Christ said to the Pharisees, "If ye love me, then whom ye have seen, how can ye love him whom ye have not seen? Now, I don't know a dozen people in your city, but on Tuesday night when the little evangelist asked if there was an evangelist or a preacher in the audience would pray. No one responded, and his mother had to do the praying. I tell you, dear ones who profess to be followers of the lowly Nazarene, I believe these things will come up against us in the judgment, and he will say, inasmuch as ye did it not to the least of these my brethren, ye did it not unto me. I firmly believe that God has filled that boy with his spirit and sent him out to preach the gospel and warn sinners of the wrath to come. And if God's people everywhere would lay aside their dignity and their prejudice and jealousies and rally around him, there would be a great wave of salvation sweep the country. I believe we all really want to see souls saved and we all really want to see souls saved ourselves. Our church, you know, dear brethren in Christ, let us give God the glory. A. F. ALLIEN.
